

in a situation in which the federal prosecutor and state security have begun to beat up the prisoners we don't feel much like long statements.

regarding ponto and the bullets that hit him now in oberursel, we say that it wasn't clear enough to us that these people, who initiate wars in the third world and destroy entire populations, are dumbfounded when they are confronted with violence in their own house.

the state security's smear about "big money" is bullshit, as is everything which was said about the attack. the thing is of course always first, to put the new against the old, meaning here: the struggle, for which there is no prisons, against the universe of money, in which everything is prison.

susanne albrecht from a raf commando

august 14th 1977